OVERVIEW

The 2011 Safe Schools Institute will provide a forum for educators to address best practices in the broad area of school safety. Utilizing a multi-hazards approach, the Institute will address prevention/mitigation and response strategies for a wide range of safety challenges including natural disasters, as well as violent or potentially-violent incidents. Experts in the fields of emergency preparedness, law enforcement, mental health and violence prevention will present on a variety of topics focused specifically on a school setting.

The Institute is specifically developed for those persons responsible for providing direction to district-level school safety programs, particularly those individuals who are responsible for ensuring district compliance with the Schools Against Violence in Education (SAVE) Act. Other persons who would benefit from participation include directors of schools, building administrators, school resource officers, and school counselors.
